

EXECUTIVE SERVICES

Coaching, Counsel and Events for Senior Executives

In learning organizations, managers and executives support their employees in gaining new insights and skills. But, where do our executives get the support they need to gain new insights and skills?

Executives today are faced with the challenges of not enough time in a day, nor enough resources for all that needs to be accomplished.

To support continuous learning organizations, Building Blocks offers learning solutions for executives and managers, geared to address specific challenges and scaled around budget and time constraints. These solutions include providing facilitators and keynote speakers for strategic meetings or retreats, and executive coaching; personal individualized interaction focused on moving leadership forward.

Executive Services

Our world is changing at an incredible pace with ever increasing demands and challenges for leaders; they can no longer rely on past experience and success to overcome many of the new competitive and technological challenges. How do we achieve more—incredibly more—with less; less time, less cost and fewer resources?

Where do our leaders find the unique help and relevant information they need? Where can they find the tools to help their management teams achieve corporate goals and objectives?

We work with seasoned, certified Executive Coaches anchored in the Rhode's Executive coaching model. With over 50 years of collective experience, our team has developed a unique service offering designed specifically for executive leaders. These services assist Executives to overcome their challenges, enable their continued success, and provide personal focus to achieve peak performance.

Our Services Include:

Executive Coaching Program

The Coaching Program is a one-to-one program allowing a flexible real-time approach to personal and career development. This Program provides Executives with the tools required to lead a team to incredible results – ensuring all the players on the team are working at optimum performance levels.

Facilitators

Corporate Management retreats present ideal environments for rallying the troops. With the right facilitator, they can energize and motivate management team members and encourage them to look at company challenges with a fresh perspective. During these events, our facilitators will exemplify your vision and engage your management team to embrace change.

Keynotes

Whether you are looking to kick-off an event, launch a new initiative, or engage your participants, a keynote speaker, within the space of an hour or less, can communicate core concepts of governance, clarify emerging issues or establish credibility in a succinct and entertaining fashion.

Professional Development

We offer relevant courses for your entire management staff. Bring a coaching methodology to your organization with our Coaching: A Leadership Skill course, or refresh and engage your new managers with the Leadership and Management Skills Boot Camp.

To align with corporate professional development initiatives, Building Blocks offers customized on-site courses to meet our clients' needs.
